President's Message

Ann Sauberman, Co-President

We all have been watching and learning about the vivid examples of climate change. Raging fires in Los Angeles followed by destructive mud slides and huge hurricanes in North Carolina and the East Coast have been featured in both newspapers and TV news. The threats to all of us, on ignoring or not actively attacking the causes of climate change, will hurt not just us locally or nationally, but throughout the world. We know that burning fossil fuels and cutting down forests are increasing the earth's climate and the earth's temperature. This adds enormous amounts of greenhouse gases to those naturally occurring and affect global warming. On February 7, our Branch had the opportunity to meet on Zoom, Rear Admiral Jonathan White (Retired), and learn directly what is happening to our oceans and waterways.

Admiral White's passion for oceanography and the Navy began early in life, thanks to the influence of his mother and a Navy diver who lived next door. He earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Oceanographic Technology from the Florida Institute of Technology, and a Master's Degree in Oceanography and Meteorology from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School. Then he spent 32 years as an Oceanographer and Navigator in the Navy. Following his Navy career, Admiral White served as President and CEO of the Consortium for Ocean Leadership (COL). COL is a non-profit corporation that represents ocean science and technology in universities, industries, and non-profit sectors. Admiral White has extensive experience in working with the U.S. Government to advance policies specific to the ocean, weather, and climate.

During his talk, Admiral White explained the effects of global warming and the increase of CO₂ in the oceans. These facts alone are killing fish and destroying potential food supply. This will result in global starvation. CO₂ produced by human activities like burning coal, oil, and gas, are the largest contributors to global warming. Other destroyers to the environment are methane, nitrous oxide, and fluorinated gases, which are greatly adding to ocean temperature. As the oceans become warmer, hurricanes also increase their negative effect. Each year, as the temperature increases, hurricanes become more dangerous and cause death and increased destruction of property. Admiral White presented many slides and charts to show how the increases of these gases are directly changing our climate and the quality of our lives.

Admiral White described many changes that we need to make in order to stop the adverse condition of our oceans and the destructive effect on the world. The nations of our globe must work together to decrease the dependance on coal, oil, and gas. Renewable energy sources must be developed. They must stop deforestation, decrease livestock farming, and the dumping of dangerous chemicals in our lakes, rivers, and streams. The dumping of plastics is also extremely dangerous to our oceans. Investments in renewable energy sources like wind, solar, and thermal must be greatly increased. The two suggestions that impressed me the most was the huge project of planting vegetation in the ocean and the development of safe nuclear energy. The plants would absorb the great quantities of carbon dioxide and produce oxygen. This would be a very useful way to reduce CO₂ and provide food for ocean wildlife. As for nuclear energy, I was shocked to learn that if we substituted fusion instead of fission, nuclear energy would not be as unsafe and would not produce tons of waste materials with very long half-lives. As I was growing up, nuclear power was considered the most unsafe and dangerous form of energy. But in his presentation, Admiral White showed that when we were able to use the fusion method, atomic energy would be a solution to replace fossil fuels. Much research and development is still needed.

As I close this message, I would like to thank Irene McGhee and Amy Crolius, Co-Vice Presidents for Programs for arranging this very interesting and thought- provoking Zoom meeting. Admiral White presented much depth on climate change and was willing to answer our many questions. He encouraged us to be very active and limit our use of plastics, join carpools, and recycle among other energy saving techniques. Even though right now it appears the Federal government is not concerned about changing our carbon foot print and working with the nations of the world to improve climate change, we must not give up. We need to read, study, and advocate for positive action.

Climate change is too important for us to cede.

Public Policy

Susan Burk, Public Policy Chair

The Virginia General Assembly adjourned Sine die (without setting a day to reconvene) on February 22. It was a busy session with some 3,000 bills considered during less than two months. The following bills of importance to AAUW-VA passed the House and Senate and are headed to the Governor's desk for signature, amendment, or veto:

HB 1921: This bill requires employers to provide paid sick days to all workers in Virginia. Passed the House 51-47; Passed the Senate 21-16.

HJ 2/SJ 248: Constitutional amendment would automatically restore voting rights for people convicted of a felony after their sentence. Passes the House (must be approved again in 2026 to be placed on the ballot for a vote by VA voters.)

HB 1928: Minimum wage. Increases the minimum wage incrementally to $15.00 per hour by January 1, 2027. The bill codifies the adjusted state hourly minimum wage of $12.41 per hour that is effective January 1, 2025 and increases the minimum wage to $13.50 per hour effective January 1, 2026 and to $15.00 per hour effective January 1, 2027. The bill requires the Commissioner of Labor and Industry to establish an adjusted state hourly minimum wage by October 1, 2027. Passed the House 50-46; Passed the Senate 21-19).

Failed

SB 1122: Paid Family and Medical Leave. Passed Senate 21-18; Killed on House floor 49-48 (2/3 required to pass).

Virginia Budget Highlights

The General Assembly reached a compromise on the FY 26 budget which has been sent to the Governor for signature, amendment, or veto. The combined budget would give a one-time 1.5% bonus for state supported local employees. It includes reporting requirements if the Federal Government reduces federal grants. It removes a limit on how many of a local school division's support staff are funded by the state, and raises per pupil spending to $8,662 in FY 25 to $8,983 in FY 26, according to the Commonwealth Institute for Fiscal Analysis. The conference report maintained an additional $25 million for a child care pilot program and a $1,000 bonus for teachers and other instructional positions.

Establishment of Emergency Committee to address impact on workers, local economies, and critical state programs of the purge of federal workers and cancellation of programs.

Virginia House Speaker Don Scott (D-Portsmouth) has assembled a bi-partisan emergency committee to explore the challenges posed by the Administration's actions. Virginia is home to more than 144,000 federal employees. Northern Virginia and Hampton Roads are home to the largest concentrations of federal workers, but experts expect federal job losses to impact the entire state. The Governor has acknowledged the impact of the President's job cuts but, according to the Virginia Mercury, has defended the moves as necessary to eliminate "inefficiency and bloat." Federal dollars reportedly make up one third of Virginia's total state budget, largely supporting Medicaid, public education, SNAP benefits, and transportation. The emergency committee plans to hold a series of meetings across the state to hear from local officials and impacted communities. The following are members of the Emergency Committee:

Anne Ferrell Tata, R-Virginia Beach

Josh Thomas, D-Prince William County

David Bulova, D-Fairfax County (chair)

Robert Bloxom, R-Accomack County (vice chair)

Bonita Anthony, D-Norfolk

Ellen Campbell, R-Rockbridge County

Joshua Cole, D-Fredericksburg

Michael Feggans, D-Virginia Beach

Hillary Pugh Kent, R-Richmond County

Marcus Simon, D-Fairfax County

Tony Wilt, R-Rockingham County

Vivian Watts, D-Fairfax County

The Governor has introduced a job search website for Feds who have lost their jobs in this "downsizing" effort: <https://virginiahasjobs.com>
